

ABSTRACT

The present invention is directed to a new class of enteral formula containing an admixture of casinate and a stabilizing protein, which is either whey or vegetable. These 5 new enteral formula exhibit significantly reduced creaming when compared to the enteral formula of the prior art in which caseinate was the sole protein source. The invention also includes a method of reducing creaming in enteral formula.